

I wanted to start with the fact that cars pollute the environment a lot with their exhaust gases. I think that cars are generally good, they can drive where we need to and they can transfer everyone very well.

But at the same time, it is very bad because they pollute the environment with their exhaust gases, which harm both plants and people. We breathe in, and I think those gases are harmful to health, they are harmful not only to people, but also to animals, which may be weaker than us humans. Well, it's like poison for plants, they start to die just like people. You can say that cars are both good and very bad, but instead of a car, you can choose two-wheelers,, even trolleybuses; I think they pollute the environment and the whole earth less, and you can choose electric cars.
